Design and Physical Value

43 Colborne Street has design and physical value as a representative example of Italianate commercial architecture in Fenelon Falls. It forms part of the historic commercial block addressed municipally as 39-43 Colborne Street. The building, which was constructed in 1884 as a replacement for an older commercial block that burned down earlier that year, demonstrates the key features of this architectural style which was the most popular architecture style for commercial construction in Ontario in the second half of the nineteenth century. It is representative of the execution of this style in Fenelon Falls between about 1870 and 1890 when it was at its height of popularity and the commercial core of the village was developing rapidly from its pioneer beginnings to an established Victorian community.

Historical and Associative Value

43 Colborne Street, also known as the Jordan Block, has historical and associative value as a commercial block constructed in Fenelon Falls during its peak of nineteenth century prosperity. Near the end of the nineteenth century, the community underwent a period of rapidly increasing prosperity that attracted new businesses, residents and investment into the community. This property is a subject of that period of prosperity and yields information regarding Fenelon Falls' economic growth near the end of the nineteenth century. More specifically, the property has historical value as a bank, which has been located in the southern half of this property since 1902, first as the Bank of British North America and later as the Bank of Montreal. Its role as a bank building yields information regarding the development of banking and local financial services in Ontario communities in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century.

Contextual Value

43 Colborne Street has contextual value as a contributing feature to the historic commercial streetscape of downtown Fenelon Falls. The property, which is historically, visually and historically linked to its surroundings as part of the continuous commercial streetwall along the west side of Colborne Street, maintains and supports the historic commercial character of the village's downtown area which is characterized by its collection of Italianate commercial architecture dating primarily from the 1870s and 1880s. The downtown area includes a variety of late nineteenth century Italianate property executed in a similar style, size and massing to the subject property which, taken together, form a cohesive downtown landscape of which 43 Colborne Street is a contributing feature. It is physically linked to its surroundings as a portion of the commercial block addressed municipally as 39-43 Colborne Street.
